MHTTC

Mental Health Technology Transfer Center Network
Funded by Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration

The purpose of the MHTTC Network is technology transfer - disseminating and implementing evidence-based practices for mental disorders into the field.

Funded by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), the MHTTC Network includes 10 Regional Centers, a National American Indian and Alaska Native Center, a National Hispanic and Latino Center, and a Network Coordinating Office.

Our collaborative network supports resource development and dissemination, training and technical assistance, and workforce development for the mental health field. We work with systems, organizations, and treatment practitioners involved in the delivery of mental health services to strengthen their capacity to deliver effective evidence-based practices to individuals. Our services cover the full continuum spanning mental illness prevention, treatment, and recovery support.

The MHTTC Network uses affirming, respectful and recovery-oriented language in all activities. That language is:

Binary thinking

- Very common, can be helpful in some situations
- Can help us to make decisions quickly and easily
- Limited because it does not allow room for shades of gray
- Contributes to “groupthink” - practice of decision making that discourages creative nuanced thinking and individual responsibility for decisions and actions
- Examples
 - Big/small
 - Good/bad
 - Light/dark
 - Boy/girl
 - Self/other
 - Black/white

Origins of Black*/white racial dichotomy

- Traced back to the Transatlantic Slave Trade
- Hierarchy was based on the belief that white people were more intelligent, civilized, and capable than Black people
- Based on the belief that Europeans were superior to Africans
- Used to justify the enslavement of Africans
- Further solidified during the American colonial period (after Bacon's Rebellion)
- The Constitution made it clear that African Americans were not considered to be citizens of the United States

*Black is capitalized when referring to racial group; white is not (NY Times style guide)

Racial Literacy Promotes Dignity

- Racial literacy is a form of socialization that
 - Challenges binary thinking
 - Promotes awareness of injustices
 - Helps with management of discomfort caused by
 - Guilt - a feeling of regret or remorse for something we have done wrong
 - Can motivate us to make amends
 - Shame - a feeling of worthlessness or inadequacy (of missing the mark)
 - Can be paralyzing and cause us to hide or withdraw
 - Can motivate desire to change
 - Promotes dignity for all involved in therapeutic encounters (Ezra Griffith, 2023)

Data about the response to George Floyd's murder

But they found that white support didn't just return to pre-George Floyd levels.

Instead, what we see is that purple line - right? - and the current period is below the zero line, which suggests that in the aggregate, overall, on average, white support for Black Lives Matter is now lower than it was on January 1, 2020.

So for the people in the back who did not hear that, white support today is lower than it was before Breonna Taylor and George Floyd were killed by the police.

Now, in the aggregate, yeah, white people have more negative views toward the movement than they did in January 2020 before George Floyd was murdered.

"Remaining Awake Through a Great Revolution"

Source

There are all too many people who, in some great period of social change, fail to achieve the new mental outlooks that the new situation demands. There is nothing more tragic than to sleep through a revolution. There can be no gainsaying of the fact that a great revolution is taking place in our world today. It is a social revolution, sweeping away the old order of colonialism. And in our own nation it is sweeping away the old order of slavery and racial segregation. The wind of change is blowing, and we see in our day and our age a significant development. Victor Hugo said on one occasion that there is nothing more powerful in all the world than an idea whose time has come. In a real sense, the idea whose time has come today is the idea of freedom and human dignity. Wherever men are assembled today, the cry is always the same, "We want to be free." And so we see in our own world a revolution of rising expectations. The great challenge facing every individual graduating today is to remain awake through this social revolution.

Strategies to Protect Free Speech: The Foundation of Health Equity

First Amendment

Constitution of the United States

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion; or prohibiting free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

The First Amendment is widely considered to be the most important part of the Bill of Rights. It protects the fundamental rights of conscience—the freedom to believe and express different ideas—in a variety of ways.

Free and Open Academic Inquiry and Debate on Our Campuses is Essential to Our Democracy and National Well-being March 3, 2022

All members of the campus community must be able to speak their minds freely, even if some hold opinions that others find objectionable, factually unsupportable, or abhorrent. The answer to speech with which one disagrees is more speech, not enforced silence. Open academic inquiry and vigorous debate are core values of higher education, and America generally, and we must never waver in our commitment to these vital principles.

Authors targeted:

- Karl Marx, the founder of the concept of communism;
- Ernest Hemingway, one of “corrupting foreign influences,
- Erich Maria Remarque, international best-selling author who penned an unapologetic description of war, All Quiet on the Western Front, considered “a literary betrayal of the soldiers of the World War”
- American authors Jack London, Theodore Dreiser, and Helen Keller, whose belief in social justice encouraged her to champion the disabled, pacifism, improved conditions for industrial workers, and women's voting rights.

Podcast: Do No Harm: Racism in Patient Care

“And I think part of the challenge is to train students to consider the implications of complicity and complacency. Many of our students think that racism has — and other forms of oppression has — nothing to do with them or their future medical practice, or they think that racism is a problem for our politicians and activists to address and not them. And I think there are two sort of big learning barriers here. One is a rejection of anything that makes them uncomfortable, and another is distancing themselves from how they are morally implicated by systemic issues like racism and other forms of oppression.”
