The Southeast Mental Health Technology Transfer Center

The Southeast Mental Health Technology Transfer Center (Southeast MHTTC), located in Atlanta, GA is proud to serve the eight states in HHS Region IV: Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee. Our mission is to promote the implementation and sustainability of evidence-based mental health services in the Southeastern United States. Our vision is widespread access to evidence-based mental health services for those in need.

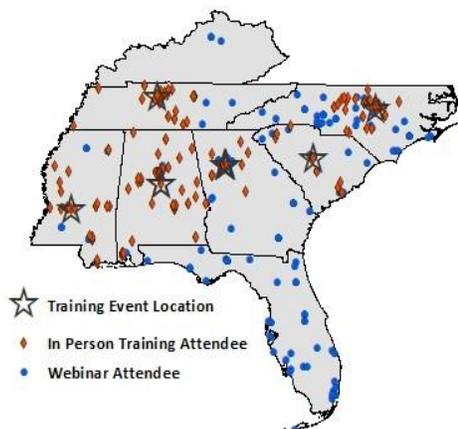

Area of Focus: Public Mental Health

The Southeast MHTTC uses a public health framework to develop leadership capacity and train providers with the goal of improving care for individuals with mental health conditions throughout Region IV, comprising 8 southeastern states.

Regional Needs Assessment

In its first year, the Southeast MHTTC conducted a region-wide needs assessment to better understand the landscape of public mental health in the southeast. We focused on examining the demographic, clinical, and mental health system characteristics of the region; available mental health-related trainings and resources; and states' mental health priorities, strengths, and needs. A final version of the needs assessment report can be found here.

Year One Activity Highlights

During its first year, the Southeast MHTTC held 13 events for 605 participants: 3 meetings, 8 in-person trainings, and 2 webinars. Event participants included counselors, social workers, recovery specialists, and mental health professionals representing government, state or local health departments, community or faith-based organizations, recovery support programs, and community health centers from the eight Region IV states.
