Panelist from the National Center for School Mental Health

Dr. Sam Reaves is a Postdoctoral Fellow with the National Center for School Mental Health at the University of Maryland School of Medicine. Dr. Reaves' research interests lie at the intersection of mental health and education and she often investigates how school or family factors influence student outcomes in underserved communities. As a clinical-community psychologist, she believes great prevention work can be done and realizes the importance of strengthening the systems children are nested in to promote wellbeing.

NEXT: please insert slides that the NCSMH speaker would like to include from your designated module to provide a recap of the module during the live session; the following slides are slides that were kept for Module 1 Learning Session, based on the NCSMH speaker's input

Panel Discussion

Panelists

Saun-Toy Latifa Trotter is a healer. She is the Manager of School Based Behavioral Health programs at UCSF Benioff Children's Hospital Oakland and a Trauma Informed Systems trainer and Coach. She brings over twenty years of experience providing behavioral health services to adolescents and families, including 14 year of practice at school based health centers. She serves on the board of the National School Based Health Alliance. Saun-Toy is committed to culturally responsive, trauma and resilience informed practices that foster individual, organizational and community wellness.

Dr. Lisa Thomas is the Assistant Director of the Devereux Center for Effective Schools. She is a nationally certified school psychologist and a Pennsylvania licensed psychologist, school psychologist, and elementary teacher. In her professional experience, Dr. Thomas has provided assessment, training, and consultation services to a variety of individuals and organizations to develop universal, targeted, and intensive behavioral and academic support systems within alternative education, behavioral health, and public school settings. She serves on Pennsylvania's Community of Practice on School-Based Behavioral Health and is a State Coordinator for Pennsylvania's Positive Behavior Support Network. In 2017, Dr. Thomas was the first recipient of the Association for Positive Behavior Support's Ted Carr Early Career Practitioner Award.

Tell us a little more about yourself, your role,
and how school mental health teaming plays out in your work.

What are some of the successes that you have seen happen as a result of good teaming practices?

What are some of the common barriers that schools you work with have experienced around teaming and how have they been overcome?

What would you recommend for a district or school who is just starting out in developing a school mental health team?

What has changed about school teaming during the pandemic?

What strategies do you recommend for effective teaming going forward?
