Description

Suicide Risk Assessment is an interactive training targeted to Master's level and licensed mental health clinicians who provide counseling and/or assessment in a variety of settings. The training will highlight the importance of suicide risk assessment and demonstrate ways clinicians can recognize, assess, and intervene when working with at-risk clients. After completing the training, participants should be able to:

- Implement the components of effective suicide risk assessment
- Discuss the elements of suicide risk assessment that have been determined to be “best practice”
- Discuss key elements in completing an effective crisis and safety response plan
- Identify appropriate agency, professional, clinical, and social resources
