

Southeast Mental Health Technology Transfer Center

The Southeast Mental Health Technology Transfer Center (MHTTC) was funded by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) in 2018. We are dedicated to promoting the implementation and sustainability of evidence-based mental health services in the eight states of HHS Region IV: Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee. Our team consists of faculty and staff from Emory University Rollins School of Public Health, which gives us a unique lens to address mental health priorities.

Year 2: August 15, 2019 - August 14, 2020

The Southeast MHTTC worked with local and national experts, stakeholders, and partners to offer in-person and virtual trainings, develop products, and provide intensive consultation during Year Two. In-person trainings delivered throughout our 8-state region focused on suicide prevention and peer support services; virtual training topics included mental health related evidence-based practices and behavioral health systems' response to the pandemic. In addition, the Southeast MHTTC School Mental Health team delivered regional and national trainings focused on school mental health finance and policy, trauma-informed schools, and the National School Mental Health Curriculum. The Southeast MHTTC quickly adapted to a virtual service delivery model in response to COVID-19 thereby reaching a broader training audience than expected. Our public mental health area of focus enabled us to offer several virtual trainings on mental health system challenges, response, and resilience during COVID-19.
