Communicating About Children's Mental Health

Schools and districts have different levels of awareness and understanding about the role of mental health in student success.

They will have different points of view on if and how they play a role in school mental health.

There may be obstacles that obscure the landscape of school mental health resources available to support students, including in a variety of settings.

Overview and Instructions

The purpose of this graphic tool is to illustrate a spectrum of school mental health (SMH) supports and services (i.e., Tiers 1, 2, and 3) that may be available to SMH providers and staff in different contexts. This tool is designed to help districts or schools to communicate consistently with therapists, counselors, social workers, psychologists and other school mental health providers and staff. The goal is to create a shared understanding of their role in leveraging resources, strategies, and partnerships, including in collaboration with other adult allies on and off campus. It may be useful to customize the language of the graphic tool for your school district community. Additional guidance and application recommendations are available here.

THE SOUTHEAST MENTAL HEALTH TECHNOLOGY TRANSFER CENTER

The Southeast Mental Health Technology Transfer Center (MHTTC) is funded by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration. The mission of our center is to disseminate evidence-based mental health programs and practices to the eight states in Health and Human Services Region IV (Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee) through the provision of trainings and technical assistance as well as the development of resources. Our center is housed in the Department of Health Policy and Management at the Emory University Rollins School of Public Health.

The Southeast MHTTC School Mental Health Initiative is led by Dr. Janet Cummings, a mental health services researcher and national expert on mental health care access and quality among children and adolescents. Our team includes faculty and staff with expertise in public health, mental health systems, health economics, policy, finance, equity, and implementation science. As the regional MHTTC center that specializes in school mental health policy, finance, and workforce, many of the trainings and resources that we have developed address topics related to funding and sustainability of comprehensive school mental health systems.
